

Oscar Quotes the Bible, But Hogan Is There, Too, And Poor Oscar Loses Out

Outside of That There Was Nothing Doing in Essex Market Court, So All Hands Went to Football Game in Harry's Ticker Stadium and Won $2.80 in Cash.

By Roger Batchelder.

ESSEX MARKET POST, A. O. O. R., noted the calendar (the insurance company's, not the court's) and decided to go to the Harvard-Yale Game. Bill Beltrac, peerless fingerprinter, as well as President of the famous local, at once sent Pete Walker to get tickets. Pete went as far as 14th Street without success; there were plenty of tickets on hand for the Rivington-Exeter Street bowling contest, but not one for the football classic. Jerry Creedon conceived the idea of walking in backward, so that the ticket-takers would think he was coming out, and the entire local adopted it at once. Judge Corrigan, however, put a damper on the affair. He informed the Post that the game was in Cambridge, and not at the Polo Grounds, as popularly supposed. As a result, the Post spent the afternoon at Harry Spitz's ticker in the official bar across the street, and is reputed to have won $2.80.

In the morning, however, there were certain things of a judicial trend that had to be arranged. One was the case of a gentleman named Oscar, of Hebrew origin nevertheless.

W. H. TODD PAYS FOR SHAFT.

Brooklyn Now to Start Work on Park War Memorial.

Work on the permanent honor roll to be built in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, will be begun at once, Park Commissioner John N. Harman said yesterday.

William H. Todd, the Brooklyn ship-builder, has increased his gift toward the construction from $10,000 to $35,000, which is the sum necessary for the complete cost of the monument.

The honor roll is to be built of granite fourteen feet in height, and will contain, in bronze, the names of the 2,300 Brooklyn men who lost their lives in the war.

And if you failed to go to church yesterday, or played poker Saturday night, here is a chance to square things. For Essex Market Court gives to the world all topics and events, and this particular classic has to do with religion.

Oscar was pompous, hurried and insistent. He was complaining against another gentleman, and although his case was last on the calendar, he approached Assistant District Attorney Hogan and declared that his case must be heard at once. Mr. Hogan replied that a calendar was a calendar, and that it could not be changed. Whereupon Oscar started the following argument:

"Are you a Christian?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Hogan. "Do you know that the Bible says, 'The first shall be last, and the last shall be first'?"

Oscar smiled victoriously at this moment.

"But," said Mr. Hogan, "it also says, 'Many are called, but few are chosen.' You are called, but you aren't chosen. Take a seat in the second row and wait for your turn."

Oscar then went to Judge Corrigan and quoted several other parables. His Honor listened and said, "Mr. Hogan wins. Sit down."

Oscar sat down, and his case was called last. In a melancholy tone, long after noon, he recited his woes. But his pep was gone, and Judge Corrigan found the defendant not guilty.

"Never again," murmured Oscar. "And I thought he was just a lawyer."
